The Melbourne Athenaeum Incorporated
ANNUAL REPORT 2013
Presented April 2014
The Melbourne Athenaeum has always been an important part of the life of Melbourne. It began as the Melbourne Mechanics’ Institution in 1839—just five years after Melbourne was itself established.

Mechanics’ Institutes made major contributions to the cultural and social development of Victorian cities, providing accessible libraries, reading rooms with newspapers, lectures and classes. The Melbourne Mechanics’ Institution was the leading cultural establishment of the new colony.

The present site in Collins Street was purchased in 1840 and the original two-storey building was completed in 1842. The Melbourne City Council rented the hall for use as its Council Chamber until 1854 when the Town Hall was built.

In 1989, the building was added to Victoria’s Register of Historic Buildings. Importantly this section of Collins Street, between Swanston and Russell Street has retained much of its historic charm where other sections of the street have made way for contemporary developments.

The Athenaeum has joined with Reader’s Feast at Georges and Kay Craddock Antiquarian Booksellers at the Assembly Hall to promote the Reader’s Walk which is a valuable addition to Melbourne’s City of Literature status.

The Melbourne Athenaeum, with its focus on theatre, literature and the arts, has truly reflected the development of Melbourne as a cultural centre, and grown and changed with the times.

President’s Report

The Melbourne Athenaeum Incorporated enters its 175th year as a vibrant part of Melbourne’s historical and literary history community.

During the year we welcomed Rose Blustein as Librarian. Rose has held senior management positions in a number of government and NGO libraries for over 25 years and in recent years transferred out of libraries to work in operations and human resources. Rose brings a wealth of experience to managing the library and I look forward to working with her in the future.

The library collection continues to be updated and improved and in terms of my favoured genres, provides a crime fiction collection that is unmatched in Victoria.

The building management and our three tenancies continue to be a priority. We have now completed a Conservation Management Plan, with parts of the building dating back to 1842 this is an important document to guide us in maintaining and preserving an historic part of Melbourne.

During the last 12 months further work has been completed on electrical switchboards, mechanical systems and plumbing.

The library has benefitted from new shelving, a refurbished office and painting of the water damaged ceiling. The ceiling painting and shelving was undertaken with funds donated by members through the Public Fund. I would like to take this opportunity to thank all members who donate to the Annual Giving Appeal. Your donations are used for a variety of specific purposes to improve the amenity of the library. Contributions to the fund are tax deductible and I would encourage all members to consider a donation when letters are sent out in May.

In January the committee held a strategic review to set an agenda for 2014 and review our 2013 goals. This session is a valuable mechanism that ensures we are focusing on the right areas. The board charter and sub-committee charters are updated where needed and each provides guidance for the year.
The Athenaeum has a number of successful partnerships in place including promotion of the Reader’s Walk, the Crime and Justice Festival (hosted in collaboration with Readers Feast), Rare Book Week and Open House Melbourne, State Library of Victoria, Sisters in Crime, and also sponsorship of a short story category in the Scarlet Stiletto Awards called “Body in the Library”. These partnerships are a great way to further promote the Athenaeum and to play our part in the City of Literature.

Finally I would like to thank all the volunteers that are a vital part of the Athenaeum. They provide a whole range of functions from running the library to archiving to researching our history. Their support is invaluable, and your support as a member, by visiting, attending events, and sharing your love of the library with friends will propel the library towards its 200th anniversary.

Business Manager’s Report
This is the report on activity around the library and building in 2013. It was a year of transformation and transition, but our objective of offering members a warm, friendly service in the library has been a constant throughout.

So much work is undertaken upstairs in the administration office, and I would like to thank the committee, accountant David Pryor, bookkeeper Caroline Debevc for their efficiency and good humor in managing our financial affairs. I’m fortunate to share the office with honorary member and archives guru Marjorie Dalvean. The committee and I appreciate her continued effort, with the help of her voluntary team, to reveal the stories behind the Athenaeum. I’d also like to thank the library staff and volunteers for their support during another busy but fulfilling year.

Governance
The Athenaeum committee met 11 times in 2013 (including the Annual General meeting). It formed four sub-committees: library, property, marketing and finance and audit. The management committee and each sub-committee have developed a written charter that outlines its objectives and these will be reviewed annually. The sub-committees reporting mechanisms have improved proceedings at the monthly meetings. Committee members and the sub-committees they serve on are noted elsewhere in the report.

Building
The Athenaeum manages three commercial tenancies in the building. Our tenants provide a stable ongoing income source that supports the Library operation. In 2013 a long term lease was signed with Bistro D’Orsay securing this income source well into the future.

In 2013 the property committee completed a Conservation Management Plan. It is a blueprint for the building’s major conservation issues. It identifies the committee’s policy priorities for the next five years. While funding has been directed towards electrical wiring and emergency and safety issues during the year, the organisation also partially funded the upgrade of air conditioning units in the main theatre. This was a partnership with tenants AT Management, and its completion over summer has improved the comfort for patrons.

Library
Library Manager Allison Belcher left in March 2013, and a staff review was commenced by the management committee and staff. Staff workshops were held and recruitment priorities determined. The library was fortunate to recruit Honorary Librarian Rose Blustein to the role. A librarian with strong management skills and leadership experience, Rose arrived at the library already knowing many of our volunteer librarians and members through her own professional
After adopting a single subscription (plus a discounted concession) in 2012, and returning to a membership fee structure that had been place for decades, there was a decrease in subscription income in 2013. It is anticipated with additional marketing support from the sub-committee and volunteers, new strategies to encourage and retain members developed and implemented during 2014.

Physical improvements to the library continue, with new shelving in the “new release” section being completed, the ceiling was painted over Christmas 2013 and the staff room has been renovated.

Archives

Volunteer archivist Marjorie Dalvean continues to assist with many enquiries from members, researchers and the general public about their history and ours.

The collaboration to publish Margaret Bowman’s book on George Gilbert continued with Australian Scholarly Publishing and the State Library of Victoria. With support from the Athenaeum the small publication will be launched in April 2014.

Two portraits of former Secretary RE Wilmot and his wife were hung in the library. These were a donation from his descendants and have been restored and framed.

The Athenaeum is supporting the publication of a second edition of Pam Baragwanath’s remarkable book If the Walls Could Speak (published in 2000). With historian Ken James, Pam has collected more than 400 additional entries to create a two volume edition The Walls Speak Volumes. It is hoped this publication will be launched during the 17th birthday celebrations.

175th Birthday & Anniversary

Planning is underway to mark this milestone in the organisation’s history. A call for ideas was circulated to members, and plenty of suggestions have been made. The committee is considering a range of proposals – all in keeping with the organisation’s objectives. It is hoped the activities will remind Melbournians of the place this institution has in the cultural development of the city.

Library Activity in 2014

The Melbourne Athenaeum Library as Victoria’s first library provides a unique experience linking members with Melbourne’s early history and our beginnings as Melbourne’s oldest cultural institution. The institution’s purpose was “the diffusion of literary, scientific and other useful knowledge amongst its members”. This remains the institution’s purpose, and the year commenced with ABC Radio National’s writer, presenter and journalist Ramona Koval in conversation with literary journalist Helen Elliott.

In February the library welcomed Shuk-hing Chan, Senior Librarian, Hong Kong Public Library. She was researching subscription libraries and spent some time with library staff. It was exciting to receive an email from her advising that The Melbourne Athenaeum Journal had been catalogued at the Hong Kong Public Library, where it could be borrowed by one of their 3.3 million users.

Library staff and volunteers commenced a stock-take of the collection in March, and the library hosted a number of visiting groups in April and May, including students from Williamstown High School, and parents of students from Caulfield Grammar.
Once again the library participated in Open House Melbourne, attracting close to 4,000 visitors over the weekend. To celebrate Rare Book Week, the library hosted talks Artist’s Books: art and collaboration by Melbourne artist Bruno Leti, and Collecting Poetry by Richard Overell of the Matheson Library, Monash University Richard Overell.

Popular speaker Jessica Adams returned to provide tips and tricks on publishing in the electronic environment, and in September the library was pleased to welcome US author and forensic anthropologist Kathy Reichs. The partnership between the Athenaeum and the Sisters in Crime has been mutually beneficial over the past two years, and further events are planned in 2014.

Melbourne’s Lord Mayor Robert Doyle gave an engaging and candid talk about his early life, and how his love of books and reading enhanced his life, education and career.

Some significant upgrades were completed to the physical space in 2013 including the painting of the ceiling in December, repainting the library entrance, and installing new shelving in the “new release” section.

We were pleased to welcome Rose Blustein to the library in late 2013, and here are some of her observations since joining the team.

Welcome Rose Blustein

After an absence of more than 10 years I feel quite privileged to have been given the opportunity to return to working in libraries. In the short time I have been here I have been impressed by the Library’s excellent collection particularly in the genres of crime fiction and biography and also by the high quality of customer service displayed by both staff and volunteers.

I am hoping that the next 12 months will see a review of the collection, responding in particular to the requests of our members. We will also be recruiting more library trained volunteers to support our small team of dedicated staff.

Archives Report

Research and visitors
Academics, students, family historians and professional writers from the USA, UK, interstate and from Victoria were welcomed in the new archives room. They were given tours of the library and collections, a background history of the institution and given access to the archives collection free of charge. Special presentations about the library were provided to RMIT students, secondary students and professional librarians in the library.

Robin Wagner, Director of the library of the Gettysburg College in Pennsylvania, in town for conference about mechanics institutes, was pleased to hear about the first mechanics institute in Melbourne, her first encounter with this type of institution.

Athenaeum Theatre usherette Coral Degenhardt arrived to talk about her experiences when British films were shown in the theatre, one of seven in Collins Street at the time. She recalled the Cecil Parkes Trio playing before and during intervals of each evening’s entertainments. She married Assistant Projectionist Lionel Degenhart as a photograph of the pair is in the Archives.

Extended research was conducted concerning The Athenaeum’s association with the Melbourne City Council, the first tenant in 1843 and the Melbourne Cricket Club which was formed in 1838, the year before the Melbourne Mechanics Institution. Sporting equipment for the MCC’s first match was purchased by Donald Gordon McArthur, a member of The Athenaeum’s first committee. The MCC held many meetings in the Institution’s building.

Interviews, talks and publications
A trip to Williamstown was conducted to meet volunteers and give a talk about the Melbourne Athenaeum’s building to a large group of members of the Williamstown Historical Society. I was interviewed by Libby Gore on ABC National’s Sunday program “Melbourne’s Secrets”.

Anne Marsden completed her Creative Fellowship at the State Library of Victoria and her essay about the men of the first committee was published in the November 2013 edition of the SLV’s La Trobe Journal. Anne also gave talks to Historical Societies in Heidelberg and Fitzroy.

Margaret Bowman presented the La Trobe Society’s AGL Shaw Lecture at the Royal Historical Society of Victoria, about George Alexander Gilbert. Her presentation, My Life with George, was transcribed and published in the La Trobe Society’s journal, Latrobeana.

Donations
The portraits of RWE Wilmot (Secretary 1909-1949) and his wife Jane were cleaned and given special conservation treatments and now hang in the library. The watercolour of Mrs Wilmot was badly foxed, caused by the acidic backing card. The fragile paper was removed and placed on acid-free card and the brown foxing marks were removed. The cost of the conservation work was supported by the generous donation by a member – and greatly appreciated.

The archivist of Her Majesty’s Theatre, Mary Murphy sent a box of 60 theatre programs from live performances at the Athenaeum Theatre dating from 1997 to 2007. The collections includes programs for Melbourne Theatre Company productions and solo performers such as Michael Feinstein.

The programs are being added to a state-wide database for small museums managed by Museum Victoria called “Victorian Collections”. Work is underway to add the Melbourne Athenaeum’s complete database to this website address:

(use search term: “Melbourne Athenaeum”).
